Eric Henderson
CM 1158

1) Internationalization is making it adaptable to multiple languages, while Localization is actually adapting it to those languages

2) They are important because they allow developers to reach wider audiences. An example could be something like an operating system